New CCPS Website Set for Live Launch on January 9, 2024

Visually appealing, easy to navigate, and uniform in appearance

JONESBORO - Clayton County Public Schools (CCPS) is thrilled to announce the grand launch of new district and school-based websites on Tuesday, January 9, 2024! The websites are designed with our users in mind. They will provide easier access to current information, innovative educational initiatives, exciting community engagement opportunities, and important CCPS news - directly to your fingertips or just a few clicks away.

In spite of upgrades to our websites, staff, students, families, and other stakeholders can rest assured that the information you are used to accessing will still be available. Features of the new websites will include the following:

- more visually appealing icons and images
- greater consistency in appearance among district and schools' websites,
- easier to navigate web pages, and
- faster processing

While all the new websites will embrace a more uniform appearance, they will still preserve their unique school identity and demonstrate how we are Building a Better Tomorrow, Today.

We have prepared an engaging video to guide you through the exciting changes. Click here: <https://youtu.be/pjB2TSkDEpw> to embark on a visual journey and quickly get acclimated to our revamped digital landscape.

Our websites are one of the gateways to current information.

We are excited about these much-needed upgrades,” commented Superintendent/CEO of Schools, Dr. Anthony W. Smith.

In addition to new websites, CCPS will also upgrade the following platforms at the top of the year:

- telephone/email notification system application

All stakeholders are asked to stay tuned for more details as we finalize these enhancements! CCPS is indeed revolutionizing the way stakeholders access information and shaping the future of education within the Clayton County Public Schools System as we Build a Better Tomorrow, Today.
