Clayton County Public Schools Partners with Georgia Commute

Clayton County Public Schools has become the first school district in the United States to commit its entire school system to participate in the Georgia Commute Options Program. Georgia Commute Options is a Georgia Department of Transportation program that promotes commute alternatives to driving alone such as carpooling, van-pooling, transit, walking and biking in efforts to reduce pollution and congestion on roads.

For the school system, the program offers clean commute incentives to school faculty and staff as well as promotes ridesharing on the student level. "As a school district, we aim to provide a safe, orderly and secure learning environment for both our employees and our students," said Tamera Foley, Executive Director of Teaching and Learning. "This partnership will provide our administrators the opportunity to spend less resources on transportation cost, reduce the amount of cars in our school zones resulting in better safety for our students and providing improved air quality for the students, teachers and staff members."

As part of the district-wide partnership, representatives from Georgia Commute Options will attend Parent Teacher Associations (PTA) Meetings and visit schools to share the types of benefits associated with the ridesharing programs.

Teachers who try a clean commute (walking, biking, riding transit or carpooling) to school are eligible: to receive $5 for each day they use a clean commute (up to $150, over an assigned 90-day period), and monthly $40 or $60 gas cards. Also every month 1 in 10 CCPS employees will win a $25 gift card.

"Clayton County is one of the best school districts in the Metro Atlanta area and we have some of the best employees," said Dr. Foley. "As we continue to grow our district we actively seek opportunities to reward our employees for their hard work and dedication to our students. We are extremely excited to bring this program to our faculty and staff and I believe it will become one of the many reasons, along with our excellent facilities, outstanding professional development programs, that CCPS will continue to be the best place to teach," she added.

CCPS Partners with National Dropout Prevention CenterBy: Charles White

Clayton County Public Schools (CCPS) is aggressively addressing the issue of preparing children to be college and career ready when they exit the school district. A big part of this preparation involves keeping Clayton County's youth in schools.

CCPS along with the National Dropout Prevention Center/Network (NDPC) have partnered to offer the Diploma Planning Institute, a two-day working event that guides school teams through a process that yields a practical graduation rate improvement plan with specific action steps that can be implemented in the coming school year.

The National Dropout Prevention Center/Network is a membership organization created in response to the national need to share information about the issue of youth at risk and dropout prevention. began collaborating with the National Dropout Prevention Center/Network toward the end of the 2014-2015 school year," said Dr. Alicia Dunn, Coordinator of Guidance and Counseling. "As part of that collaboration, principals and graduation teams from each of the district's high schools learned about dropout prevention and brainstormed site-based strategies

that could be used to deter students from dropping out of school."

"Clayton County Public Schools

Each graduation team—high school and middle school teams of three to five staff members developed a Graduation Improvement Plan closely aligned to the school's School Improvement Plan. The developed strategies are being shared with the National Dropout Prevention Center/Network for review.

"We aim to graduate every student that comes to Clayton County Public Schools and provide them with the education necessary for all post graduation options," said Superintendent Luvenia Jackson. "Keeping our students in school until graduation day is very important to our district's mission and understanding how to prevent as many dropouts as we can will not only increase our graduation success but provide the opportunity for a better quality of life once the student leaves the district."

In the 2015-2016 School year, Clayton County graduated over 2600 students, a number the district hope to surpass this year.

For more information about the National Dropout Prevention Network, visit this website: NDPC-web.clemson.edu.

Clayton County Public Schools is the 5th largest school district in the state of Georgia and the 89th largest in the United States with over 54,000 students.

Working together: Psychological Services and School Social

Workers By: Ronald Shields

The Clayton County Public Schools Department of Psychological Services is comprised of School Psychologists who team with educators, parents, and other mental health professionals to ensure that every child learns in a safe, healthy, and supportive environment.

During the 2015-2016 school year, Clayton County Public School's 24 school psychologist were called upon over thirty thousand times to provide psychological consultations or evaluations to the district stakeholders (see chart below).

However, to successfully meet student needs, the Department of Psychological services must work closely with school social workers to ensure the success of those students. The school social worker serves as the link between school, home and the community by coordinating services and developing strategies and interventions to improve school academic, social and behavioral performance.

The mission of the Clayton County Public Schools social worker is to provide services to students and their families to promote student performance, school completion as well as success in the workplace. This is done by providing support services for students, parents/families and schools as well as hosting community outreach programs throughout the year.

"School Psychologist and Social Workers support academic achievement by working together to identify barriers to learning and determine the best instructional practices to improve educational outcomes," said Lead School Psychologist Cheri Taylor. "We also work with schools to successfully implement the Response to Intervention Process (RTI).

RTI is defined as "the practice of providing high-quality instruction and interventions matched to student needs, monitoring progress frequently to make decisions about changes in instruction or behavior goals, and applying child response data to important educations decisions" (Batsche et AL., 2005).

In education, RTI is a method of academic intervention used in the United States which is designed to provide early, effective assistance to children who are having difficulty in the learning environment.

"The Psychologist of the Clayton County Public School system do an impeccable job identifying and analyzing problems and developing a plan to help those students with learning difficulties" said Tamera Foley, Executive Director of Teaching and Learning. "The students are our greatest resource and one of the goals of the school district is to provide each of those students with a quality education that they can understand."

Programs and Assessment: Student Testing

By: Charles White

The Division of Teaching and Learning is responsible for the testing programs that affects all students enrolled in Clayton County Public Schools (CCPS) each year. Management of this extensive program is one of the jobs assigned to the Office of Accountability, Assessment, and Evaluation.

The district's Assessment Program features both formative and summative testing that is used to monitor the progress of our students throughout the school year. These assessments are also used to measure student achievement of the state-adopted content standards.

"The primary purpose of all assessments administered to our students is to improve teaching and learning while positively impacting student achievement," said Coordinator of Student Assessment, Dr. Natasha Jefferson.

Results from administered assessments are used in a number of ways:

- 1. Identify students who are failing to achieve mastery of content,
- 2. Provide teachers with feedback about instructional practice, and
- 3. Assist our district in identifying student strengths and weakness in order to establish priorities in planning educational programs.

The district's primary assessments are:

- Georgia Milestones Assessment System (GMAS)
- · ACCESS for ELLS
- Georgia Alternative Assessments
- Student Learning Objectives (SLOs)

Each year, the Office of Accountability, Assessment, and Evaluation places the testing calendar on the CCPS website to provide stakeholders with a detailed list of assessments for each level of students. www.clayton.k12.ga.us/administration/calendars/studenttesting.asp

Clayton Reads in Every Season A Book A Day – The Clayton Way!

By: Charles White

During the summer of 2016, Clayton County Public Schools launched an exciting initiative designed to promote reading across the curriculum throughout the district. Initially established as a summer reading program, Clayton Reads blossomed into Clayton Reads in Every Season with a focus of promoting literacy not only during the school year but year round as well.

"According to the National Reading Panel, students who spend time reading for at least 30 minutes a day, read 1.8 million more words than their peers who do not dedicate this time," said Dr. Ebony Lee, Coordinator of English Language Arts and Media Services. "Students who read regularly tend to read more fluently and have better speaking and writing skills as well as have the capacity to be better learners in the classrooms," she added.

By using targeted district wide reading campaigns, the specific purposes of the Clayton Reads in Every Season initiative include: promoting student interest in reading in an effort to encourage life long reading and learning, increase vocabulary, fluency and comprehension levels, and increase the percentage of students reading on or above grade level proficiency levels.

"Recent state performance data on the Georgia Milestone Assessments shows at least 1 out of 2 of our students is reading below grade level, which means they do not possess the necessary skills for success in the academic program," said Superintendent Luvenia Jackson. "We know literacy combats a host of social and economic issues such as poverty and crime. As part of our mission to be accountable to all our stakeholders, it is our goal to increase the amount of time our students dedicate to reading in efforts to assist them in achieving academically, socially and professionally," she stated.

Anticipated schedule of reading events throughout each season of the 2016-17school year include:

FALL

- September Public Library Card Sign-Up Month
- Sept. 8 International Literacy Day
- Sept. 27 Banned Books Week
- Oct. 18 Teen Read Week
- November Picture Book Month

WINTER

- January Georgia Book Award Voting
- January Helen Ruffin Reading Bowl
- Feb. 24 World Read Aloud Day

SPRING

- March 2 Read Across America
- April D.E.A.R. (Drop Everything And Read) Month
- April 20 El dia de los libros (Book Day)
- May 2 Children's Book Week

The School Nutrition Department served 7,827,995 lunch meals in the 2015-2016 school year. That is nearly 44,450 lunch meals served daily through the district.

Clayton County School Police are G.R.E.A.T!

By: Ronald Shields

In 2013, Clayton County Public Schools approved the development of the Clayton County School Police Department, which operates through the Safety & Security Department. Since the department's creation, the school districts police department has upheld its goal to provide and maintain a safe, orderly and secure learning environment for students, staff and visitors, however, now they aim to be G.R.E.A.T.

Prior to the start of the 2016-2017 school year the Clayton County Public Schools Police Department hosted and participated in the Gang Resistance Education and Training (G.R.E.A.T.) Program in which all district School Resource Officers (SROs) became certified as G.R.E.A.T Officers.

Built around school-based, law enforcement officer-instructed classroom a curriculum, the program is an evidence-based and effective gang and violence prevention platform that provides a continuum of components for children and their families. These components include a 13-lesson middle school curriculum, a 6-lesson elementary school curriculum, a summer component, and a family component.

"This program is expected to serve as an intervention for such behaviors as delinquency, youth violence, and gang membership," said Chief Thomas Trawick, Director of Safety and Security. "It is targeted for students at the elementary and middle schools, the years immediately before what are considered prime ages for introduction into gangs and delinquent behavior."

Since the G.R.E.A.T. Program went nationwide in 1992, many law enforcement agencies and schools from all 50 states, the District of Columbia, U.S. territories of Guam and Puerto Rico, Bermuda, Canada, Central America, England, and military bases in Japan and Germany have implemented the Program. Currently, the G.R.E.A.T. Program is delivered in over 500 communities across the United States.

"The school police department does an outstanding job providing high quality public safety that promotes and fosters a safe and secure learning and working environment," said Superintendent of Schools, Luvenia Jackson. "In order to maintain a safe environment we have to ensure that all personnel is receiving the training needed to best serve our students and this program assists with those efforts," said Superintendent of Schools, Luvenia Jackson.

The school police also intend to continue promoting effective communication, collaboration and cooperation between district and school administrators, as well as teachers, staff, parents, students, and other law enforcement partners.

Pay Raises & Incentives for CCPS

By: Ronald Shields

In early 2016, the Clayton County Board Education approved $53,405,027 comprehensive recruitment retention incentives recommended by Clayton County Public Schools (CCPS) Superintendent Luvenia Jackson for the FY2016 and FY2017 school years.

The recommendation offers incentive options to enhance recruitment efforts and encourage the retention of certified and highly qualified teachers. Although some of the recommended incentives are for all employees, the intent of the incentives is to address the school district's need to recruit and retain certified and highly qualified educators.

Some of the incentives include lucrative signing bonuses for returning and new teachers, as well as additional incentives will be offered throughout FY2016 and FY2017 which include, perfect attendance bonuses, discounted childcare services, relocation allowances, longevity recognition mementos and gifts for all employees with specific years of service, community discounts from local vendors, school supply cards for new teachers to the school district, and a four percent (4%) raise and one step increase for all employees as part of the annual budget process in FY2017.

"It is our goal to recognize the performance of all employees and continually recruit reputable staff. We are not only invested in the academic success of all children, but also the quality of life for our dedicated employees. This is an amazing accomplishment and we are excited about the great things that are happening in the Clayton County Public School District," said Dr. Douglas Hendrix, Chief Human Resource Officer.

As news of the pay raise and newly adopted incentives spread, teachers expressed their excitement for the apparent vote of confidence from the Clayton County Board of Education.

"Increasing teacher pay will energize our efforts to retain and recruit superior teachers as well as ensuring that students have access to 21st century resources needed to propel them towards distinguished academic achievement," said Yolanda Phillips, STEM Science Teacher at Rex Mill Middle School. "Keeping highly qualified teachers in Clayton County helps us to prepare our learners to compete globally. We are educating students for jobs that are not yet in existence; therefore retaining teachers who can expand STEM curriculum and other rigorous learning experiences will ensure that our students will be equipped to fill these jobs," she added.

With the incentives in place for the 2016-2017 school year Superintendent Jackson hopes this has far reaching effects on the current and future employees as the district continues to make strides with the students in mind.

"It is our hope that the right combination of incentives and a positive work environment will continue to encourage all employees to remain focused on our number one priority—the academic success of all students attending Clayton County Public Schools," added Ken Thompson, Chief Financial Officer.

Attendance Matters: Every Child, Every Seat, Every Day By: Ronald Shields

Clayton County Public Schools (CCPS) is committed to working cooperatively with parents and students to improve daily and on time attendance. In efforts to stress the importance of daily attendance, CCPS created its Attendance Matters Initiative.

Research documents show that frequent absences interrupt student learning, which can affect their interest in learning and attitude toward school. For a student to be marked present for a full school day, a student must be present for one half or more of the school day.

"Attendance is very important to academic success," said Superintendent of Schools, Luvenia Jackson. "Being at school not only promotes the student's academic progress, but also establishes a pattern for good work attendance as an adult."

Clayton County Public Schools recognizes that significant improvement in attendance can only occur when stakeholders work to promote collaboratively achievement. A part of that collaboration requires an understanding of responsibilities that the school, student, and parent should be accountable for promoting daily and ontime attendance.

"It takes a village," said Jackson. "The education process is the shared responsibility of the parent/guardian, the school system, community and the student. We all have to work together to ensure that we are putting our students in the best situation for successes, and it starts with being present from day one to day one hundred eighty."

The largest facility in Clayton County Public School is Charles Drew High School, which sits on over 63 acres and has 296,499 square

Building from Within: CCPS Focused on Promoting & Retaining Quality Teachers

By: Ronald Shields

With the support of the Clayton learning and the same rigorous to the start of the 2016-17 school year.

In an effort to address the shortage of certified classroom teachers, prior to the conclusion of the 2015-16 school year, the Clayton County Public Schools (CCPS) Human Resources and Professional Development Departments invited over three hundred district support staff personnel to attenda meeting as part of the districts Support Staff to Teacher Initiative-about the Teacher Academy of Preparation and Pedagogy (TAPP) program.

certification. By using field-based

County School Board, CCPS standards of a traditional teacherworked diligently to fill as many training program, TAPP is designed of the vacancies as possible prior to develop proficient teachers in a timely and economically feasible manner.

> "The purpose of the meeting was to inform and hopefully inspire them to take the next step in their professional careers, which is becoming one of our fantastic teachers," said Dr. Douglas Hendrix, Chief Human Resources Officer for CCPS. "Our goal is to support the district by recruiting highly qualified teachers we can make them from support personnel who are already on our team."

The TAPP program targets highly As part of the initiative the district qualified college graduates who paid for the new teachers first test wish to begin a teaching career registration and for their TAPP while earning a renewable Georgia program matriculation, and since the provisional teacher salary schedule was eliminated as a part of the Be Great incentives package, the new teachers will receive a full teacher salary which starts at approximately $43,500 (see page 15).

"I truly believe we have world class employees here in CCPS that are deserving of this opportunity," said Luvenia Jackson, Superintendent of Schools. "The only way we can provide students with the education they deserve as future leaders is to have high quality teachers and at times that means building from within our own district."

The Support Staff to Teacher Initiative began as part of the "Be Great" campaign and is used to provide employees that are certified in instructional classroom support with the opportunity to become teachers.

The newest completed school in Clayton County Public School is the Martha Ellen Stilwell School of the Arts, which was constructed in 2015.

In efforts to hold true to that mission, the CCPS Board of Education voted to implement two Magnet school - Lovejoy High School and Morrow High School, as pilot projects in the areas of mathematics and technology during the 2016-17 school year. This focused learning approach is expected to help Clayton County students become ready for future college and career opportunities.

CCPS also values it robust partnerships with community organizations such as Coca-Cola, Georgia Power, Clayton County Water Authority, Kaiser Permanente, Georgia State University, Clayton State University, Atlanta Technical College, and many others that play an essential role in the collaborative preparation of students transitioning into college/career environments.

Through a variety of Career, Technical and Agricultural Education (CTAE) programs, CCPS students are encouraged early in the education process to focus on opportunities later in life. These Programs ensure career awareness in elementary school, career visualization in middle schools and career preparedness in high school. Students who graduated from high school after successfully completing an industry certified CTAE "Career Pathways" are equipped with interdisciplinary and technical skills needed for immediate employment in high-demand, high-skilled, high-wage occupations.
